RUSSIANS RETAKE VADENI, SIX MILES FROM GALATZ

Muscovites Assume Offensive Near Important Town on the Lower Danube, Which Long Has Been Under Bulgar Fire.

Berlin Admits Superior Force Compelled Turkish Forces in Vadeni Neighborhood to Withdraw.

Germans Announce Russians Who Gained Success Near Smorgon Were Driven Back With Heavy Loss.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 17.—The War Office announces the recapture of the village of Vadeni, in Rumania, six miles southwest of the Danube town of Galatz.

An attempt by the Teutonic forces with reinforced columns to recapture Vadeni was frustrated by the Russians, who inflicted heavy losses. The official statement reads: "Our detachments, after artillery preparation, gained by storm the village of Vadeni, 10 versts southwest of Galatz. The enemy, having received reinforcements and assisted by an artillery detachment, himself took the offensive with the object of regaining the village. His formations, which caused our concentrated fire, received great losses and failed to reach our trenches.

"Our detachments, by a night attack, succeeded in driving the Germans out of Gerleschi, southwest of the mouth of the River Rinnik, capturing two machine guns, but, as the result of a counter attack by superior enemy forces, we were obliged to withdraw from the captured village. German attacks southward of Gerleschi were checked by our men."

Admits Withdrawal by Turks Near Galatz.

BERLIN, Jan. 17, by wireless to Sayville.—Russian attacks against the German positions south of Smorgon (southwest of Vilna), on the Russian front, were repulsed yesterday, says the official statement given out today. The Russians, who had entered the German lines along a narrow front, were driven back, leaving numerous dead on the field.

Russian and Rumanian forces yesterday continued their violent attacks with strong forces against the German lines recently captured by the Germans between the Kistino and Suckiza valleys, says the statement. At only one place did the Russians and Rumanians succeed in gaining a footing, being canularly repulsed at the other battle fronts.

Vadeni, the statement adds, the advanced Turkish posts were retired in the face of numerically superior Russian forces to the main intercepting line. In a review of the Rumanian situation the military critic of the Overseas News Agency asserts that the Teutonic campaign along the Moldavian border is methodically developing in spite of misty weather and the difficulty in moving supplies. The commentator adds:

"The southern bank of the lower Sereth River has been cleared of Russian rear guards. The Turkish troops distinguish themselves in the storming of the village of Mihaila, only three kilometers (about two miles) distant from the railroad, between Galatz and Teleni, along the left bank of the river."

Positions Strongly Fortified. Northeast of Fokshani the Russians are maintaining themselves in the swampy lowlands, which are three to five kilometers broad, between the Danube and the bend of the Putna River. On the northern bank of the Putna they are making the last desperate effort, in strongly fortified positions, to prevent their mountain wing from being outflanked. In spite of obstacles the troops of the central Powers are daily progressing toward the plain.

"By throwing back the Russian rear guard positions in the vicinity of the mouth of the Sereth, Galatz, which is the point of approach to the north position, has become more seriously menaced. After the conquest of the villages of Mihaila, Laburtea and Teleni, the Russian operations in that district were narrowly limited. The Russian now have been thrown back from the southern line of the fortress surrounding Galatz and in spite of the winter weather the fighting is in full swing. The village of Vadeni, the last outpost of importance in the swampy district, only four kilometers from the railroad bridge across the Sereth, was captured on Jan. 12. Vadeni dominates the bridge, the railroad and the larger part of the roads radiating from Galatz. Galatz Long Under Fire. The town of Galatz, with its naval base and arsenal on the east and harbor on the west, had been under fire from the Bulgarians advanced in the southwest corner of Dobruja. The military establishments of the town, rising like an amphitheater on the bank of the Danube River, offer excellent opportunity for attack. The railroad

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—The food situation in Germany has grown much worse during the last six months, an Associated Press correspondent, who has returned from a trip to Berlin, says. Potatoes are so scarce that this week's per capita ration in Berlin was less than four and one-half pounds.

No cheese has been on the market since August and eggs are unavailable except surreptitiously at 16 to 20 cents each. Berlin's daily milk supply is about 350,000 litres, against a normal 1,000,000.

OSBORNE A "NAVAL PRISONER"

Former Sing Sing Warden Investigating Conditions for Daniels. PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 17.—Thomas Mott Osborne, former Warden of Sing Sing prison, John McCormick, professor of political science at Bowdoin College, and Osborne's secretary, Harry Brooks, entered the United States naval prison here yesterday, handcuffed and in gray uniforms, to begin a week's voluntary servitude. Their purpose is to investigate conditions at the prison for the Navy Department at the request of Secretary Daniels. On the detention ship Southern they were given the customary examination and then were put to work in the laundry and scrubbing down the deck.

Osborne as "Tom Brown," and McCormick as "John Austin," are booked as deserters. It is planned to transfer them to the naval jail and set them to work on the rock pile and at cleaning yards and buildings. Brooks will remain on the ship as a "detentioner," the name applied to men held on short sentences for misdemeanors.

FISH CLOG WATER INTAKE PIPE

Suction Holds Them to Net at Mouth of Main Diver Takes Them Off.

The intake pipes of the East St. Louis water plant have been almost blocked by fish several times recently. John K. Cochran, the general manager, said it was necessary one day last week to have a diver go down and take the fish off the net that covers the mouth of the pipes.

The suction into the pipes draws the fish against the wire mesh and holds them there. The diver found one pipe almost entirely shut off. A dozen big fish were flattened against the net, unable to move.

PRESIDENT VOICES NATION'S GRIEF AT DEATH OF DEWEY

Funeral to Be Held Saturday, When Admiral's Salute Will Be Fired.

FLAGS AT HALF MAST

Exercises Will Be Held on Every U. S. Naval Vessel and Station in World.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Funeral arrangements for Admiral Dewey were partially completed today.

Orders were issued by the Navy Department to bring all the cadets at Annapolis and all available bluejackets from the Norfolk and Washington navy yards to attend the funeral, which will be held here Saturday. Secretary Baker will order all available army units to participate in the ceremonies.

Secretary Daniels and ranking officers are engaged today arranging the details. These include appropriate exercises on every American naval vessel and at all American naval stations throughout the world and the firing of an Admiral's salute of 17 guns.

It virtually has been decided to hold funeral services for the Admiral in the Capitol under the dome, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. The body, however, will not be viewed by the public. In the event that the plan is perfected, Congress would adjourn on that day.

President Wilson will issue an executive order closing all Government departments on Saturday.

Until Secretary Daniels has conferred with President Wilson and Mrs. Dewey, no additional plans will be decided upon. A guard of honor, composed of bluejackets from the gunboat Dolphin and the Presidential yacht Mayflower, was stationed at the Dewey home.

In official and diplomatic circles and elsewhere the loss of the country's most distinguished naval officer was mourned today. President Wilson in a statement voiced his own and the nation's grief.

Secretary Daniels likewise paid tribute. American naval vessels and stations throughout the world received word of wireless of the Admiral's death, with instructions to display flags at half-mast.

Admiral Dewey suffered a collapse last Thursday, although the previous day he was at his desk apparently in his usual good health. His condition grew rapidly worse and he had not been conscious since Monday. The end came at 5:36 last evening. Death was due to a general breakdown accompanied by arterio-sclerosis.

Third to Hold Rank of Admiral. Only two other men—Farragut and Porter—have held the rank of the Admiral of the American navy and, since Civil War days, no military figure has held such a place as Dewey in the affection and admiration of the American people.

His death ended 62 years of active service. His baptism of fire came in the Civil War, through which he served with distinction. Promotion followed promotion during the years following, and he was a Commodore, commanding the Asiatic fleet, when the order, "Capture or destroy the enemy's fleet," gave him the first news of hostilities with Spain and sent him into Manila Bay for the feat that won undying fame and had far-reaching effect upon the position of the United States as a world power.

Immediately Dewey was advanced to Rear Admiral and then Congress, by special act, made him Admiral of the Navy, a grade that died with him.

Since 1900 he has been on duty at the Navy Department as President of the General Board, constantly in touch with all activities of the navy, advisor of secretaries and a mighty champion of a greater fleet. Year after year he BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Munich military authorities, struggling with the beer shortage problem, have limited the amount which may be served daily to any one customer to one-half liter glass (about a pint) with lunch and three half-liter glasses with dinner.

The order does not prevent a customer going from one restaurant to another and drinking the maximum amount at each, but it does break up the club habit of sitting hours at a stretch, drinking the beer resources at the big popular cafes.

Critchfield and Mrs. Fox were standing by the woodshed in the rear yard when Fox began to shoot, he told Sheriff Ford today. When the body was found it was half a block distant from the scene. Fox made no attempt to get away. He is a veteran of the Civil War, having served in the Union army. Critchfield was from Boone County and was employed in a local brick plant.

EAST ST. LOUIS SECOND CITY IN ILLINOIS, PASSING PEORIA

Population on July 1 Estimated at 74,708 by the Federal Census Bureau.

The population of East St. Louis, on July 1 last, is estimated at 74,708, in the new bulletin of the United States Census Bureau, a copy of which was received in the Post-Dispatch office today.

The 1900 census showed a population of 59,000 for East St. Louis. This was 802 less than the population of Peoria in that census. But the bureau now figures East St. Louis as the second city of Illinois in population. Its estimate of Peoria's population July 1 last, is 71,438, or 2500 less than the East St. Louis estimate.

The estimate for St. Louis, 767,308, and similar estimates for other large cities and for Missouri cities, were published recently, when dispatches first outlined the contents of the bulletin.

CONTRACT FOR BIG SHELLS GOES TO ENGLISH CONCERN

Award to Haddfield, Limited, Made After American Bidders Refuse to Reduce Prices.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Contracts for armor-piercing naval projectiles of the 14-inch and 16-inch type, totaling $3,140,000, today were awarded by Secretary Daniels to the Haddfield, Limited, an English munition company.

Bids from American firms were more than $200 a shell in excess of that submitted by Haddfield. In announcing the award Secretary Daniels said the department had made every effort to get reductions in prices which would enable it to give a contract to an American concern, but had failed to obtain satisfactory bids.

The question of delivery aside from cost of the shells was an important factor in favor of Haddfield. On the 400 14-inch projectiles delivery was guaranteed in 18 months and for the 300 16-inch 16 months was specified. Time proposals from American bidders were approximately twice those of the British company.

British Official Statement Reports Confirmation of Rumor That Vessels Had Been Lost.

PRESS CABLEGRAMS SAY THAT 19 HAVE BEEN LOST

Japanese Steamer Said to Have Landed Some of Masters and 237 Men From Crews—Captured Boat Believed to Have Carried Away 400 Others.

By Associated Press.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 17.—According to information received today from a British official source, seven vessels in the Atlantic have been sunk and nine captured by a German raiding vessel.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Eight British and two French merchant vessels have been sunk by a German raider, it was announced today.

The ships sunk are: British—Dramatist, Radnorshire, Minich, Netherbyhall, Mount Temple, King George, Georgie, Voltaire, French—Nantes and Amieres.

The steamships St. Theodore and Yarrowdale were captured. Their whereabouts are unknown.

The following announcement was given out here officially today: "For some time past it had been assumed that the following British and French merchant ships, which had long been overdue, had been sunk by a German raider: British—Dramatist, Radnorshire, Minich, Netherby Hall, Mount Temple, King George, Georgie, Voltaire, French—Nantes and Amieres.

Confirmation of Report Received. "Definite information has now been received from Pernambuco confirming this assumption.

"On the evening of Monday the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru arrived off Pernambuco, having on board the masters and 237 men of the crews of some of the lost vessels, which were sunk on various dates between Dec. 13 and Jan. 12.

"In addition the steamer St. Theodore was captured and a prize crew put on board; and the steamer Yarrowdale was captured and sent away with about 400 men, the crews of others of the sunken vessels, who were to be landed. No further news has yet been received of their whereabouts."

Wireless Warning Message Told of Presence of German Raider.

Most of the boats, when last reported, were in the South Atlantic, indicating that the German raider has been at work off the South American coast. At Norfolk last night, there was picked up a wireless warning that a German raider was off the Brazilian coast, near Pernambuco last Friday. The message addressed "to all ships," placed the raider in latitude 7 degrees south, and longitude 25 degrees west. The German vessel was described as a ship of about 400 tons, well armed and with torpedo

Press Cablegrams Tell About German Raider Sinking 21 Vessels

By Associated Press.

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 17.—According to information received today from a British official source, seven vessels in the Atlantic have been sunk and nine captured by a German raiding vessel.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Press cablegrams received here today report the sinking of 13 merchant steamers and two French schooners in the South Atlantic in the last few days by a German raider, the identity of which has not been learned, but is believed to be called Vineta. The cablegrams are based on reports from Pernambuco and Rio de Janeiro and tell of stories related by survivors who landed at the former city. A message from Rio also tells of an additional vessel, flying the British flag, being sunk by the raider without warning, from which 60 persons were reported drowned. The tonsnage of the destroyed vessels, so far as it can be compiled at this time, is $5,000.

Sailors to the number of 337 from five of the vessels sunk by the raider were landed at Pernambuco from the Japanese steamer Hudson Maru, and they gave first information of the raider's operations. These five vessels were sent to the bottom about 15 miles off that port. Among them, sailors reported, were the British steamers Dramatist and Radnorshire, the latter bound from Bahia to Harve and London. The other

The raider was a French four-masted bark of 300 tons gross. The three-masted French bark Nantes, 500 tons gross, sailed Oct. 9 from Iquique, Chile, for London.

The St. Theodore, which has been captured, is a British steamship, 500 tons gross. She sailed from Norfolk on Dec. 5 for Savona, Italy.

The other captured steamship, the Yarrowdale, 460 tons gross, arrived at Harve from New York previous to Jan. 1.

STIRRING EVENTS DURING DEWEY'S 62 YEARS IN NAVY

His Victory Over Spanish Fleet at Manila Marked Advent of America as One of World's Big Sea Powers.

"You may fire when you are ready, Gridley."

These words from Admiral Dewey to the captain of the Olympia on the dawn of May 1, 1898, started the battle of Manila Bay, the first sea victory won by America against a foreign foe since 1812. The sinking of the Spanish fleet was but one result of the battle. The real significance lay in the birth of America on that day as one of the big sea powers of the world. From that day the United States shook itself loose from its provincial wrappings and emerged as a great force in the destiny of the hemisphere.

And Admiral Dewey was the man who was fated to make it all possible. His whole life was full of honorable achievement from the days of the Civil War down to the time when, as the head of the general board, he began the last chapter of his work by laying plans for the defense of his country in time of war. His life was a striking exemplification of the possibilities of a career based upon the exact and intelligent performance of every routine duty which molds a man on inflexible lines of duty and honor.

One of the curious freaks of fortune in Dewey's case was that for perhaps the first and only time in his naval career he was disposed to protest against the edict of the Navy Department which carried him into the Far East, where he was destined to perform the greatest feat of his life and to win imperishable renown. That was back in 1898, when the war clouds were gathering and Dewey felt that he was being "shoved" that the war with Spain was to be fought out in the Gulf of Mexico and in the Caribbean Sea and that he, distant by half the circumference of the globe, would stand no chance of winning glory, for at that moment no thought whatever had been given to the Philippines. But he took his orders and like a true sailor obeyed them. The result is a page of history under date of May 1, 1898. Contrary to Spanish expectations,

Dewey sailed into Manila Bay on the night of April 30 and in the morning of the next day he annihilated Admiral Montojo's squadron, destroyed 11 warships and capturing all other vessels and all the land batteries without the loss of a man on the American side.

Admiral Dewey, in his autobiography, gave this account of the battle: "The misty haze of the tropical dawn had hardly risen when, at 8:15, at long range, the Cavite forts and the Spanish squadron opened fire. Our course was not leading directly toward the enemy, but a converging one keeping him on the starboard. Our speed was eight knots and our converging course and ever varying positions must have confused the Spaniards. My assumption that their fire would prove hasty and inaccurate was correct.

"So far as I could see, none of our ships were suffering any damage, while in view of my limited ammunition supply, it was my plan not to open fire until we were within effective range, and then to fire as rapidly as possible with all our guns.

"At 5:40, when we were within a distance of 5000 yards, I turned to Capt. Gridley and said: "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley."

"While I remained on the bridge with Lambertson, Brumby and Stickney, Gridley took his station in the conning tower and gave the orders to the battery. The very first gun to speak was an eight-inch from the forward turret of the Olympia, and this was the signal for all the other ships to join the action. "At about the time the Spanish ships were first sighted, 5:06, two submarine mines were exploded between our squadron and Cavite, some two miles ahead of our column. On account of the distance I remarked to Lambertson: "Obviously the Spaniards are already rattled."

"However, they explained afterward that the premature explosions were due to a desire to clear a space in which their ships might maneuver."

The last moments of the battle, when the attacking force already had the victory, but did not know it, were marked by a curious piece of misunderstanding. "The moving of the smoke over the Spanish squadron there were no visible signs of the execution wrought by our guns when we started upon our fifth run past the enemy. We were keeping up our rapid fire, and the flagship was opposite the center of the Spanish line, when, 7:38, the Captain of the Olympia made a report... to the effect that on board the Olympia there remained only 15 rounds per gun for the five-inch battery.

"It was a most anxious moment for me. So far as I could see, the Spanish squadron was as intact as ours. I had reason to believe that their supply of ammunition was as ample as ours was limited. Therefore, I decided to withdraw temporarily from action for a redistribution of ammunition if necessary. For I knew that if the Spanish ammunition could be shot away in five minutes.

"But even as we were steaming out of range the distress of the Spanish ships became evident. Some of them were perceived to be on fire. Others were seeking protection behind Cavite Point. The Don Antonio de Ulloa, however, still retained her position at Sangley Point, where she had been moored. Moreover, the Spanish fire, with the exception of the Manila batteries, to which we had paid little attention, had ceased entirely.

"It was clear that we did not need a very large supply of ammunition to finish our morning's task, and happily it was found that the report about the Olympia's five-inch ammunition had been incorrectly transmitted. It was that only 15 rounds remained."

Presented With Beaufort Home.
Upon his triumphant return to the United States he was feted by the nation. His admirers presented him with a beautiful home in the national capital. Congress gave him an engraved sword, and raised him from the rank of Commodore to Rear Admiral and to the full rank of the Admiral of the navy.

Admiral Dewey was the third American to reach that pinnacle of naval rank. Farragut was the first and Porter the second. It was under Farragut that Dewey received his first baptism in war.

"Vulnerable as the training of Annapolis was, it was poor schooling beside that of serving under Farragut in time of war," Admiral Dewey once said. "I never have been in a difficult situation or in the midst of a confusion of details that the simple and right thing to do seemed easy. I have often asked myself 'what would Farragut do?' In the course of preparations for Manila Bay, I often asked myself this question, and I confess I was thinking of him the night we entered the bay and with the conviction that I was doing precisely what he would have done."

Dewey was born in the shadow of Vermont's State Capitol at Montpelier, on the day following Christmas in 1857. At the age of 17 he reached the crossroads of his career; one road led to West Point, the other to Annapolis. Young Dewey favored the former, but "There was no vacancy for West Point from Vermont," explained the Admiral in reviewing his life. "Otherwise I might have gone into Manila Bay on an army transport instead of on the Olympia. But it happened that there was a vacancy at Annapolis, so I entered the navy."

At the outbreak of the Civil War Dewey was 22 years old. He was commissioned a Lieutenant and guided the Mississippi as its executive officer in Farragut's historic dash past New Orleans and its forts. He was not so successful at Fort Hudson. Farragut went through, but Dewey and the Mississippi ran aground under the guns of the forts. The ship was set afire and during the transfer of the crew under fire, the young officer "lived five years in an hour." From the close of the Civil War until the opening of the Spanish American war, the life of the American naval officer was made up of routine duty at sea and ashore. During this period, the future Admiral cruised, taught a class at Annapolis, surveyed Lower California and part of the west coast of Mexico, carried supplies to the survivors of the siege of Paris, performed duty at Boston navy yard and the naval torpedo station at Newport; inspected lighthouses and served as naval secretary on the Light-house Board; spent two years traveling on a sick leave in search of health, four years as chief of the Bureau of Equipment, and at the age of 18 was married. Continued on Next Page.

as president of the Board of Inspection and Survey with the rank of Commodore. It was in this important naval office that he presided at the trials of all the battleships, except the Oregon, which were to demolish the Spanish squadron after his return from Manila Bay. Admiral Dewey found himself in the line of popular criticism over the "gift house incident." American citizens had raised $50,000 by public subscription as a testimonial to the hero of Manila and they presented him with a house in Washington. Dewey, who had been a widower since 1872, had just married Mrs. Mildred McLean Hansen of Washington and he turned over the gift house to her. Shortly afterward the Admiral and Mrs. Dewey left the gift house and lived in the wife's former home. In 1900 Admiral Dewey was seriously talked of as a candidate for the Republican nomination as President, but the Admiral preferred to remain in the naval ranks rather than to seek such a venture in statesmanship. His admirers have since often spoken of him as the man who could have been a President if he had wished. Early in 1914 Admiral Dewey again became conspicuous in the current news by revival of the long-standing controversy with Admiral von Diederichs of the German navy, regarding the conduct of the German squadron during the blockade of Manila Bay, 18 years before. In his auto-biography, Admiral Dewey criticized von Diederichs for failing to observe the neutrality laws and told how a shot was fired across the bows of one of the German ships to impress it with the fact that the American navy had established a blockade and would countenance no undue activity on the part of the German ships, suspected at the time as friendly to Spain.

Adjusted Difference in Hurry.
"A difference of opinion about international law had been adjusted," said Dewey, "without adding to the sum of President McKinley's worries." Dewey was always a great student of history; he knew every naval campaign that had been waged from the days of ancient Greece and Rome, had analyzed them and knew why defeat or victory had come from certain movements and this without doubt was one of the factors that contributed to his own success in warfare.

One of the finest estimates of Admiral Dewey's character is contained in a tribute rendered to him by his old-time shipmate, Admiral Sampson, who was fighting the Spaniards in the Caribbean, while Dewey was lying in Manila Bay, resting on the laurels he had won in the famous battle of the 1st of May. Sampson said: "The service knows Dewey as an ideal head of a fleet. Perfectly courageous, and thoroughly balanced judgment, and quick of decision, he has the qualities which carry one to fame if opportunity is given. The man and the hour fortunately came together and the country is richer in another brilliant page of history and another heroic figure. His career has given a lofty impetus to the young which will bear fruit in nobler aspirations. He has become one of the most valued possessions which a nation can have—a national hero."

LEATHER COMPANY'S WAREHOUSE TWICE ROBBED AT NIGHT

1400 Pounds of Material, Valued at $1200, Carried Away From N. R. Allen's Store Building.
The warehouse of N. R. Allen's Sons' Wholesale Leather Co., 1206 Pine street, was robbed last night, for the second time within a month, of a large quantity of leather. On the night of Dec. 12 a watchman from a nearby establishment surprised two men as they were loading leather into a wagon near the Allen establishment. The men got away in their wagon, but left behind $1000 worth of leather. On the night of Dec. 23 1200 pounds of leather, valued at $1000, was stolen. Last night the place was again entered by breaking a show window and unlocking a door from within, and 1400 pounds, about $1200 worth, was carried away.

Two Already Passed by House, Also Will Be in Senate.
SISIMARCK, N. D., Jan. 17.—The North Dakota House of Representatives yesterday passed the women suffrage measures already passed by the Senate, one of which, modeled after the Illinois law, would grant the vote to women on all matters but those provided by the Constitution (effective July 1 next), and the other would provide for a constitutional amendment giving full suffrage. Full suffrage cannot be acted upon by the electorate until 1919, as the bill embodying the equal franchise amendment passed by the House must be approved by the next Legislature, two years hence, before being submitted to the voters.

OVERWORKED MINISTER

Tells How Vinol Restored Strength and Vitality.

St. Louis people will realize that we could not publish such letters as the following if they were not genuine and truthful statements of facts. The Rev. Mr. Hughes, Holly Springs, Ark., says: "I am a Methodist Minister, and suffered from broken-down nerves, loss of appetite and sleeplessness. I was weak, my circulation was very poor, and I was not able to do my duty in my Parish as I felt I should. I had tried various remedies but did not seem to get any better. Through Mr. Gatlin of Beardon, I learned of Vinol, and it built me up. I regained my appetite, can sleep better and do more work."

There is no secret about Vinol. It derives its power to build up the overworked, broken-down, nervous system from beef and cod liver peptides, iron and manganese peptonates, and glycerophosphates, etc., which it contains. Anyone in St. Louis who wishes to try Vinol can do so with the understanding that we will return their money if they are not satisfied. Chester Kent & Co., Chemists, Vinol is sold in St. Louis by the Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and by all other drug stores in St. Louis that display the Vinol agency sign. ## The typewriter that makes the big business organization complete

THE Royal Typewriter is necessary to make a big business organization complete. It was invented and is designed and built to meet the typewriter needs of the business world today.

It is the finishing touch to that office efficiency which the aggressive business organization must have.

It fits exactly into the high standard of organization, of personnel and of equipment that the live business house must maintain.

It rounds out the effectiveness, the sureness, the exactness, the specialized ability of the organization.

It ends excessive repairs, because it is built for long life and for the finest work. It is bought with the confident knowledge that it will not have to be "traded-out" after one or two years of use.

And this very quality of excellence is what makes the work done on the Royal stand alone as an exhibit of superiority. The precise harmony of all moving parts, the swift and sure mechanical response, the perfect presswork—all these enable the typist to do more work, to do it better—and to do it with much less effort.

Compare the work. Get the facts. Know the Royal. Put it to the deciding test of actual results in your own office, under your own working conditions. The user of but one Royal enjoys every advantage of the organization which requires a hundred and more.

Telephone or write us now, and a representative will call. A demonstration does not place you under the slightest obligation. Let the Royal prove itself to you and for you. Then come to your own conclusion.

Simple Laxative Remedy Is a Household Necessity

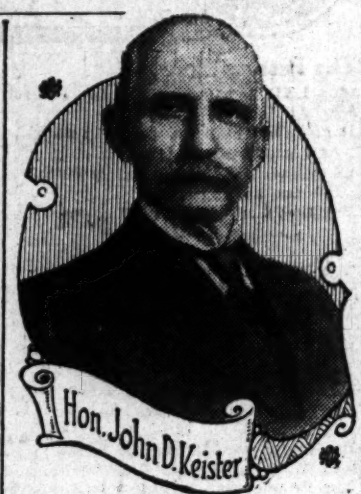

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin
Should Have a Place in Every Home.

Constipation, or inaction of the bowels, a condition that nearly everyone experiences with more or less frequency, is the direct cause of much disease. When the bowels become clogged with refuse from the stomach, foul gases and poisons are generated, and unless the congestion is quickly relieved the system becomes weakened and most susceptible to attack.

Various remedies to relieve constipation are prescribed but many of these contain cathartic or purgative agents that are harsh and violent in their action and shock the system. The most effective remedy is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

The Hon. John D. Keister of Brandywine, W. Va., who has represented his district in the State Legislature for six years, writes that he uses Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and finds it a splendid laxative, easy to take and mild, yet positive in its action, and that it should be in every household for use when needed.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists in all parts of the United States and costs only fifty cents a bottle. It contains no opiate or narcotic drug, does not gripe, and is recommended as a family laxative, mild enough for the infant babe, yet sufficiently powerful to act easily on the strongest constitution. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure to get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

The Post-Dispatch
Daily Short Story"Beauty
Unadorned"

By Sam Hellman.

SOME day someone is going to dramatize the dictionary. From "arduous," which is a low-browed African ant-eater to "zymotic," which has something to do with fermentation and contagious diseases, is a vast field deeply studded with comedies and tragedies. Look it over some day—it's full of snappy lines and strong situations.

Just as you enter the Peerless Department Store from the Main street side a pair of black eyes throws you out of a step. They belong to Rosie Simon at the perfume counter. Rosie isn't all eyes, either. She has all the other essentials. Women think it is some kind of secret lotion that gives Rosie rosy cheeks, and they crowd around the counter. The men are not so inquisitive. The effect, not the cause, attracts them.

"Who's that guy with the mop looking at you?" asked Angie O'Connor of Rosie one morning.

A bearded man who had been standing near the doorway looking intently at Rosie came toward the counter.

"My dear young woman," he said abruptly, "you're a type."

"Me?" exclaimed Rosie. "There must be some mistake. I'm Jewish."

"Oh, you misunderstand me. I mean you're a type, a girl with distinctive features, an expressive face."

"All right," conceded Molly. "Do you want something in the way of perfume?"

"No, I want you for a moving picture play."

"Oh, very well, said Rosie with a sigh. "I'll fall for a couple of ducats. What's the benefit?"

"No, no, no," cried the stranger. "I want you to take part in a movie. I'll pay you well."

"Me, you want me to act in a movie? What's the matter? Is Mary Pickford sick?"

"Now listen," said the man. "I'm manager of the Acme Film Co. across the river. Here"—and he handed her a card. "I'm looking for a type to fill a small part in a department store play we are staging. You're just the girl I want. The Acme pays well for what it wants."

"Take him on," broke in Angie. "It's the chance of a life. Mary Pickford gets $3000 a week." Rosie stood dumb.

"Come over to the studio tomorrow at 8," said the film manager. "You'll come, won't you?"

"Yes, I guess so. Wait a minute. What do I do, fall out of a burning house or get run over by a train?"

The manager smiled.

"No, it's nothing like that. You take the part of a shop girl who ought to be able to act that naturally. A rich woman adopts you and her son falls in love with you. You reject him."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Him? Nothing. You marry him later on. Anyhow, getting married is the most dangerous thing you do. Are you satisfied?"

"All right," said Rosie. "I'll be there."

The next day Rosie went to the studio of the Acme. The director hardly looked up from a script he was reading.

"Simon? Oh, yes; shop girl. Stand over there about fifteen feet away. Now register weariness.

"Come again," said Rosie.

"Register weariness. Look tired. Imagine you've worked hard all day and are ready to drop. Christmas week stuff. Now, try it."

Rosie tried it. She had the natural gift.

"Good," snapped the director. "Now, look happy. Your sweetheart has just come into the room. Fine. You'll do first rate. Is it real?" he asked, placing a finger on Rosie's cheek. "I'll be damned. I didn't think there were any natural ones left. You'll be the beauty of this show."

"How about my job at the store?" asked Rosie.

"What are you getting?"

"Eight dollars a week."

"Eight. Very well, I'll guarantee you fifty."

An Rosie left the studio she saw that the film was already being advertised. One flaming poster read, "Beauty Unadorned. An Entire Department Store Used in One Scene."

"Hello," said Angie the next morning. "I thought you were in the movies."

"I was," replied Rosie, for a few minutes. "I'm off of 'em for good."

"What's the idea?"

"Aw," said Rosie. "It's one of them tough pictures."

"What's it called?"

"Here," said Rosie. "I copied it off: 'Beauty Unadorned.'"

"What does that mean?"

"Unadorned," replied Rosie. "I looked it up in the dictionary last night. And I was to be the beauty."

The Sandman Story
for To-night

BY MRS. F. A. WALKER

CAROLINE'S REWARD.

WHEN Caroline was a little girl—years ago, before your mothers were born, I expect—her grandmother tried to teach her to knit, but Caroline did not want to learn to knit or sew. She was too fond of fun and playing.

Try as she would, Caroline's grandmother could not keep her in her room long enough to teach her the art of plying the knitting needles, and a stocking which grandmother tried to teach her to knit looked more like a piece of fishnet than anything else. Caroline was very fond of her grandmother, and one day when her grandmother was very old and died and Caroline cried, heartbroken, that she had not tried harder to please the dear old woman and learn to knit and sew as she wished her to do.

When grandmother's will was read everybody was surprised, for they all thought Caroline would have all her money, but instead of that she left what money there was in the bank to Caroline's brother Ned, and to her "beloved grandchild, Caroline," she left the contents of her room, not to be disturbed or changed in any way for three years. After that Caroline could do as she wished with the furnishings.

Everybody said it was a strange will, but then grandmother was very old when she made it and that accounted for its strangeness.

"I'll share the money with you when you grow up, Caroline," said Ned. "Don't you feel badly over it?"

"I don't feel badly about that," said Caroline. "But I do wish I had been more attentive and learned to knit, as grandmother urged me to."

"You can learn now if you only practice a little every day," said her mother. "There is grandmother's work just as she left it. Try to do it as well as she did. You know all you need is practice."

So Caroline did. She went every day and sat in the chair by the window where her grandmother always sat and used the basket on the little table with all the knitting yarn and darning cotton.

Caroline became so interested in her work that she told her mother she would take all the darning and mending for the family as her work from that time on and that she would also like to have her grandmother's room for her very own to sleep in.

Her grandmother would like to have me use her room for my own," said Caroline, "and I only wish she could know how interested I am in knitting and darning."

"Perhaps she does," answered her mother softly.

One day Caroline came running down from her room with her hand outstretched. "Look, mother!" she cried. "See what I found when I knitted the last of the blue yarn."

Her mother looked with surprise at the glittering piece in Caroline's hand, and when she took it she found it was a $5 gold piece.

"Where was a piece of paper around it, and I thought it was just the starter for the winding of the yarn," said Caroline; "but it felt so hard that I pulled off the paper and found this. Isn't it strange?"

"Where is the paper that was around it?" asked her mother.

"I threw it in the waste basket," said Caroline.

"I think we'd better look at it," said her mother.

When they found the slip of paper Caroline's mother saw there was something written on it, and this is what they read: "Keep on knitting and darning. Caroline dear; you are pleasing me very much."

"Oh, mother, mother," sobbed Caroline, "she put it there so I would find it if ever I learned to knit; suppose I hadn't tried after she died, how sorry she would be."

"But you did," said her mother, "so I would not cry, but try to knit and darn all your life, for there may be more messages for you hidden as this one was."

When the darning cotton of one color was used, Caroline came to another place of paper, and when she opened it she found a $10 gold piece, and so it was with all the balls of yarn and cotton; sometimes it would be $20, sometimes $5, and for very fine cotton a $2.50 gold piece, and even in the pieces of cloth used for patching Caroline found a gold piece.

At the end of three years Caroline had as much money as Ned and was a very happy girl beside, and when she grew up and was married she took all of grandmother's furniture to her new home.

"I can work better when I sit in her chair," said Caroline, "and beside that, I feel that dear grandmother is near to me when I use her things."

Can You Beat It?

Drawn for the Post-Dispatch
By Maurice Kellen

He Got It.

A SMALL boy appeared at the back door of a neighbor's house and said to the matron who opened the door:

"Good morning," the housewife returned, somewhat curiously.

"I came over to tell you something."

"Well, what is it?"

"Last evening my papa was angry because the water boiled out of the steamer under the rolled oats."

"Is that so?"

"Yes. And then he made up his mind to fix the steamer so that it couldn't happen again."

"What did he do?"

"He put some water in the steamer and then soldered it all up."

"Is that what you came over to tell me?"

"Yes, and to borrow your step-ladder."

"What do you want with the step-ladder?"

"I want it so father can scrape the rolled oats off the ceiling."

Could It Be Pleasant?

RILL: I hear your brother spent the autumn in his aeroplane?

Greene: Yes, he did.

"Well, I hope he had a pleasant fall."

It's Alive, All Right.

PATIENCE: I see it is said that 100 kinds of insects make their homes in the oak tree.

Patrice: Do you suppose that is what keeps the oak alive so long?
